Each department constitutes curriculum committee with Head of the department as chairperson and other faculty as members. Considering the feedback, alumni, employability and recent advances in dentistry, topics for enrichment courses, value added courses and problem based learning are decided. A well-defined method for analyzing the feedback has been established by the college. Bridging courses are conducted in the college for the students who are in need. Interdisciplinary case discussions and meetings are conducted regularly for the students to improve the interdisciplinary approach towards the cases. Overall personality development of the student is achieved by conducting Sports, Cultural events, Communication skills, Stress management, Meditation classes & spiritual wellbeing. Lectures are arranged on ethics and behavioral sciences for undergraduate and postgraduate students to give adequate emphasis on patient safety, confidentiality, rights and education. All the students of dental college (undergraduates and postgraduates) are allotted to mentors to monitor the progress of the students. The 1st and 2nd year undergraduate students are allotted to medical subject teaching staff, 3rd and 4th year undergraduate students are under dental subject teachers. Mentors of postgraduate students are their subject guides themselves.

10-15 students are given to each staff, a meeting between the mentors and mentees are called upon to obtain their internal assessment marks and attendance in every subject to monitor their progress and regularity to college. Personal details of the students like parents/guardians full address ,email ids and phone numbers, so that the progress of their ward can be posted to them and informed regarding their backlog subjects, extra classes to compensate for the shortage in attendance and extra tests to improve their academic performance.

Once the information of attendance % and internal assessment marks of all students are obtained, the same have to be mailed to a common email id of the chairperson of the committee to maintain a database of the same. All the mentors are called for a meeting once in two months, they are asked to identify students who require academic assistance, and their parents are emailed / personally called to college to inform about their wards performance.

Measures which are taken to improve their performance in academics are additional internal assessments and viva voces to improve internal assessment marks, methods to face viva voce for anxious students, written mock tests with the pattern of final examinations for students who are finding subjects difficult to cope with, extra classes for the difficult topics or topics that the students are finding difficulty in. Students who require counseling are identified and sent for counseling outside college and after college hours

The cut off 75% attendance in every subject is mandatory to write the final exams. There are some students who have shortage in attendance, such students have to be identified by their mentors, and parents are informed. Classes can be compensated by the students who are having genuine reasons for shortage in attendance by attending college during their holidays with the junior batches.

Upcoming details of dates of meetings, events, special occasions, assignments, tests, scientific programs, etc. are gathered from all the departments of the institution and framed to form the Calendar of events. When pursuing education in any program, staying organized in your schedule is important to your success. A better way to boost your organization as a student is to complete, maintain and follow a calendar. A calendar comes in handy when you notice your free times and mark in times in your week to devote to course of work. Knowing and planning for these study sessions will set you up for academic success. Breaking up your work into manageable timed sessions will help you retain information in a better way. Keeping accurate and up-to-date calendar of due dates of important assignments, tests, projects and class discussions reminds you of what you need to complete. Tobacco cessation clinic in Department of Oral Medicine and Radiology

Objectives:

1. To identify all patients having tobacco smoking/tobacco/areca nut chewing habits coming to the Outpatient Department (OPD).
2. To counsel and educate patients about the ill effects of tobacco/ areca nut chewing/ smoking tobacco and to help the patients to stop the habit completely.

Context:

As a part of the government's strategy to check tobacco menace in India, the Dental Council of India (DCI) has made it mandatory that all dental colleges in the country set up their tobacco cessation centre (TCC). Setting up these TCC's in dental colleges is a part of the guidelines to be inculcated in the BDS curriculum enabling tobacco cessation counselling to the dental students.

The need for such centres is due to the rising oral cancer cases in India, as it ranks among the top three types of cancers in the country.

Practise:

All patients coming to the OPD of Sri Rajiv Gandhi College of Dental Sciences and Hospital are asked details of their tobacco usage in smoke or smokeless form and associated areca nut chewing habits in various combinations. Based on the form of tobacco and the quantity used per day, patients are given scores using the Fagerstrom's questionnaire and categorised into mild/moderate/ severe dependency on tobacco. Patients are counselled about the ill effects of the tobacco usage by correlating the habit to their medical health condition and the patient is asked to take a Breath Test on Ico Smokerlyser to reinforce the patients about the same. The scores obtained on the Fagerstrom's questionnaire helps us to decide whether a patient would require counselling alone or combination of counselling and Nicotine Replacement therapy (NRT). The scores also help in discerning the dosage and form of NRT as these are available in the form of gums, lozenges, patch and spray.

Patient is given a quit date 15 days after he/she visits the OPD and the patient is advised to start the NRT on the first day itself. On the quit date patient has to completely stop the habit and continue with NRT and the dosage is tapered and stopped after a period of three months. He/she is called for follow up every month for three months and a follow up form is filled at that time stating whether patient has stopped the habit or reduced the habit.

Evidence of success

Those patients who had mild to moderate dependency on the habit, have come for follow up visits, have reduced the habit and some have stopped it completely.

Problems encountered and resources required:

Patients who were prescribed NRT gums, found the “chew and park method” difficult and discontinued due to the bitter aftertaste of the gum.

Since nicotine is one of the few chemicals which causes high level of addiction, chances of relapse in the patients are very high. Lastly patients coming back for follow up are very few, either we get a telephonic feedback from them or they are lost to follow up.

Education and awareness of the ill effects of tobacco usage at the school level should be taken up seriously in the form of screening camps in school, counselling given to such children who have started the habit and assist them in quitting.

Biopsies and cytological smears of Oral Lesions as adjunct to precise diagnosis in Oral Pathology

Objectives: To identify the aggressive nature of red and white lesions, ulceroproliferative growths and the like within the oral cavity by minimal invasive techniques cost-effectively Context: The educational programme provided by DCI and RGHHS insists to provide guidance in preparing cytological smears of various sites within the oral cavity, to identify and conduct biopsy of lesional tissue.

Practice: Screening camps were conducted by department of Oral Pathology. Detailed case history emphasising on habits like chewing of pan, gutkha, consumption of smokeless /smoked tobacco, alcohol etc. followed by physical examination of individuals above 40 years of age was performed. Red and white lesions encountered were biopsied and subjected to histopathology. Smears within various regions of oral cavity (buccal mucosa, tongue etc.) were prepared and stained with PAP and PAS to rule out cellular atypia, opportunistic infections and the like.

Evidence of success: By Cumulative efforts, the incidence of progression to severity of the lesions (dysplastic and neoplastic) have been within control. Efforts like routine follow ups, recording minute details of the habits and encouraging the subjects to eliminate them evoked positivity.

Problems encountered and resources required: Lack of adequate data of current status of the patient’s health especially in outstation patients and continuous monitoring is required.

7.3 Institutional Distinctiveness

The coronavirus pandemic lead to the suspension of classes for undergraduate and postgraduate students. The situation necessitated that classes have to be conducted online. Postgraduate presentations comprising seminars, journal clubs and case presentations were initiated in ZOOM app initially and later shifted to Google Meet platform. A Youtube channel was initiated to enable the students particularly the undergraduate students to have access to theory classes. An academic audit was carried out with the help of class representatives to identify topics where the students needed assistance. The staff took up the task of making video presentations and it was uploaded in the college website. The youtube channel has 317 subscribers and a total of 62 videos are uploaded.

8. Future plans of action for next academic year

- Publications in pubmed indexed journals
- Research collaboration with external institutions
- Thrust to undergraduate research
- Greater sensitization towards informed consent and ethical practice
- Audit of all aspects of clinical work
- Reporting of incidents of complications in patient care
- Conduct online and offline modes of continuing dental education programmes
- Problem based learning to be included in clinical hours
- Creation of online learning resources
- Feedback from all stakeholders' to be continuously sought by IQAC
